FACULTY POSITIONS

2017 Loyola University New Orleans, Visiting Assistant Professor (current)

EDUCATION

- 2019 Ph.D. Philosophy, Saint Louis University
Dissertation: The Philosophical Significance of Skepticism
John Greco (director), Ernest Sosa, C.P. Ragland, Joseph Salerno
ABSTRACT The charge that contemporary responses to skepticism are unsatisfying is best explained by looking to the skeptical tradition. There, one finds a common target: the self-reflexive ability to distinguish one's own genuine knowledge states from mere semblances of knowledge. I evaluate the resources contemporary epistemology has for completing such reflexive assessments. In the end, only partial success is possible. The insoluble remainder constitutes the philosophical significance of skepticism.
- 2012 M.A. Philosophy, Georgia State University
Thesis: Physics and Faith in Kant's First Critique
Eric Entrican Wilson (director), Jessica Berry, Sebastian Rand
ABSTRACT Kant's views on physics imply that the first Critique aims to vindicate not only moral religious beliefs but also properly theoretical beliefs.
- 2006 B.A. Philosophy and Religion, University of North Carolina Wilmington
Magna cum laude with honors in Philosophy
Honors Thesis: Technology, Nihilism and Hope in the Writings of Heidegger
Minor: Classical Studies
- 2006 Summer Pro-seminar, University of Colorado Boulder
- 2004 Semester abroad, University of Richmond (Florence, Italy)
