I have completed training in both waterfall and agile project management frameworks and have earned the PMP and CSM certifications. After five years of experience as a university professor, I am transitioning into project management. I am self-motivated, detail-oriented, and comfortable in fast-paced environments.

CERTIFICATIONS

Certified ScrumMaster (CSM), Scrum Alliance (2019)

EXPERIENCE

2014 – 2019 Assistant Professor, Department of Philosophy
University of Nevada, Reno

- Taught over 1,750 students in 50 sections of courses in ethics, law, and politics.
 - Designed my curriculum and aligned assessments with department strategic objectives.
 - Received student evaluations that were consistently higher than university and department mean.
- Served as the director of the philosophy department's M.A. program for three years.
 - Moved the department forward in defining the strategic vision for the program.
 - Onboarded admitted students and monitored student success and completion.
- Chaired the committee that designed the ethics component of the university's core curriculum.
 - Created a collaborative environment for faculty in humanities, sciences, business, and engineering disciplines to share perspectives on how to create learning opportunities for students to study and apply moral principles.
 - Planned, executed, and monitored the implementation of ethics course review processes.
- Conducted research on political compromise and working together despite moral disagreement.
 - Delivered public presentations to audiences of up to 100 people in a range of contexts, from fellow research specialists to community members.
 - Created written materials that share my expert knowledge on conflict resolution and enable readers to make better decisions about how and why to make concessions.
