PUBLICATIONS

Books

Perception. Routledge. 2021.

“A superb book. The no-nonsense clarity, philosophical subtlety and thoroughness are reminiscent of authors like David Armstrong and David Lewis. I’m sure it will become a classic text in the literature on perception.” - Geoffrey Lee, UC Berkeley

“Each chapter is packed with fascinating arguments.” - Jeff Speaks, Notre Dame.

“Pautz’s book does an excellent job showing how philosophical theories of perception bear on broader metaphysical questions about the relationship between mind and matter. For me, these connections are a large part of what makes philosophy of perception exciting, and no living philosopher has done more than Pautz to explore and clarify these connections.” - Brian Cutter, Notre Dame.

“The clarity with which it is written makes it absolutely perfect for use by advanced undergraduates and postgraduates, but the book also contains all sorts of ideas, suggestions and arguments that will be of interest to professional philosophers of mind and cognitive scientists working on perception.”
- Thomas Raleigh, University of Luxembourg
