

Chen-Wei Wu

cw205@rice.edu

Last Updated: June 2026

Areas of Interest

Philosophy of Mind, Philosophy of Cognitive Science, Ethics

Education

PhD in Philosophy, Rice University, 2024—present

MA in Philosophy, Georgia State University, 2022—2024

BA in Philosophy, National Taiwan University, 2017—2022

Publications

Lin, Y., Hsu, Y. Y., Cheng, T., Hsiung, P. C., Wu, C. W., & Hsieh, P. J. (2024). “Neural representations of perspectival shapes and attentional effects: Evidence from fMRI and MEG”. Cortex.

Cheng, T., Lin, Y., & Wu, C. W. (2024). “Perspectival shapes are viewpoint-dependent relational properties”. Psychological Review.

Liang, C., Lin, W. H., Chang, T. Y., Chen, C. H., Wu, C. W., Chen, W. Y., Huang, H. C. & Lee, Y. T. (2021). “Experiential ownership and body ownership are different phenomena”. Scientific Reports.

Presentations

“Sensory Transduction and the Individuation of Cognitive Systems”

- AI and Philosophy Paper Workshop, University of New Orleans, April 2026

“Reimagine the Phenomenal Character of Imageless Thought”

- American Philosophical Association Central Division, February 2026

“Conspiracy Theories as Addictive Goods”

- International Society for the Philosophy of the Sciences of the Mind, October 2025

“What Aphantasia Does Not Show”

- Society for Philosophy and Psychology, Cornell University, June 2025

- Society for Philosophy and Neuroscience, Washington University St. Louis,
May 2025

“Non-Modular Components of Shape Perception”

- Society for Philosophy and Psychology, University of Pittsburgh, June 2023

Awards, Grants, and Fellowships

William E Bryant Graduate Awards, Rice University, 2025 & 2026

Travel Award, American Philosophical Association Central Division, 2026

The Dean’s Fund, Rice University, 2025

Brains & Behavior Fellowship, Georgia State University, 2022–2024

Travel Award, Society for Philosophy and Psychology, 2023

Study Abroad Programme for Future Scholars in the Humanities and Social Sciences, Academia Sinica, 2020–2021

Academic Excellence Award, National Taiwan University, Spring 2018, Fall
2018, Fall 2019, Spring 2021